

DISCLAIMER

THE APP ACADEMY / CODING ON THE BEACH

By browsing our website and/or using its content you agree to the applicability of this disclaimer.

We, The App Academy,¹ take great care in composing the content of our website www.codingonthebeach.com. Nonetheless it cannot be entirely excluded that its content is not completely up-to-date or that it is not completely free of errors, typos and/or omissions. The App Academy cannot guarantee the correctness, timeliness and completeness of the content provided and explicitly rejects any form of liability in this regard. Our website contains general non-binding information, not an actual offer to conclude an agreement and no rights can be derived from it.

The display of a hyperlink to a third party website, does not mean that The App Academy is related to this third party or that we recommend or concur with the content of this website. The use of any links is fully at your own risk.

Most content on our website (such as logos, texts, photos and/or film) is protected by copyright. If this is the case you are basically only allowed to print and/or download this content for personal use. In principal you are not allowed to copy, publish and/or distribute (in paper form nor digitally) any content that is protected by copyright without the permission of the copyright holder(s).

The liability limitations set forth in this disclaimer are not applicable in the event of intent or gross negligence on the part of The App Academy.

The App Academy has the right to alter (the content of) the website and this disclaimer without prior warning or notification.

On our website and the disclaimer Dutch law is exclusively applicable. All disputes under or in relation to our website and/or this disclaimer will be submitted for exclusive settlement to the competent court in The Netherlands, unless imperatively prescribed otherwise by law.

¹ De besloten vennootschap The AppLabs B.V. handelend onder de naam The App Academy